

Assistant Professor of Writing Studies

Applications are invited for a position in Writing Studies at the rank of Assistant Professor. We are looking for a colleague with general expertise in rhetoric, writing studies, and composition theory and pedagogy. Specific expertise in intercultural communication and global English, technical communication design and practice, or multimodal rhetoric would be a significant asset. Applicants for this position should have a record of strong research achievement commensurate with their experience and a strong teaching record; a proven history of securing external research funding will be considered an asset. Our multi-disciplinary department offers undergraduate programs in Literature, Literature and Rhetoric, and Rhetoric and Professional Writing, and undergraduate specializations in English Literature in a Global Context and in Digital Media Studies. We offer MA programs in Literary Studies, Rhetoric and Communication Design, and Experimental Digital Media, and a unique PhD program which integrates literary studies with fields of media theory and design, composition, rhetoric, and discourse and text analysis. Since the Department enjoys an integrated research culture, competence in an additional research and teaching area, such as critical theory, semiotics, linguistics, digital humanities, or a field of literary study, is also welcome. The successful candidate will be offered a wide range of teaching, from first-year undergraduate courses through graduate teaching and the supervision of doctoral students. The current teaching load is 2 + 2, which normally includes one graduate course.
