

Congress 2014: General Pool CFP

ACCUTE is excited to announce a general call for papers for our 2014 conference, which will run during the annual Congress of the Humanities and Social Sciences. We're meeting at Brock University, in St. Catharines, ON, and scheduling events from May 24 to 27. All submissions to the general pool are due November 1, as are submissions for member-organized panels and joint sessions. Submissions to member-organized panels and joint sessions should be directed to the contact(s) identified in the specific CFPs, while submissions to the general pool should be emailed to Info.accute@gmail.com.

ACCUTE's conference will offer opportunities for scholars in multiple fields to share work and learn about trends and debates in textual studies. We also hold sessions aimed at professional development and pedagogical innovation. In addition, ACCUTE's AGM will be held during the conference.

Please submit all general pool materials to Info.accute@gmail.com. More information about the General Pool and FAQs about submitting to ACCUTE can be found at <http://accute.ca/general-sessions/> and <http://accute.ca/category/cfp-faqs/>, but note that online submissions to the website will not be available this year.

Please send submissions as separate PDF files, and be sure to include the following items:

*300- to 500-word proposal (all identifying marks removed)

*100-word abstract

*50-word bio

*Proposal Submissions Information Sheet (available at <http://accute.ca/general-sessions/>)

Please note that you must have an active membership to apply for the general pool, as well as to apply for member-organized panels. Joint session applicants must have an active membership in either ACCUTE or the joint association. ACCUTE memberships can be renewed at <https://fedcan-association.ca/accute>.

ACCUTE and ESC are pleased to announce that some travel funding will be available for 2014. We aim to cover up to half of strict travel costs (flights, trains, car rentals and gas, etc.) for presenters at ACCUTE's conference, but please note that applicants should be members in good standing.
