The Angle is a member-driven newsletter published by ACCUTE. To contribute to The Angle, contact info.accute@gmail.com
Reckonings and Re-Imaginings is the theme of this year’s Congress of the Humanities and Social Sciences. In just a few short weeks over 250 participants will be gathered at York University in Toronto/Tkaronto to collectively reckon with the past, engage with the present, and imagine the future as ACCUTE returns to the first in-person Congress since 2019. In scholarly, creative, and professional panels we will discuss a wide range of topics in literary and cultural studies, creative writing practice, pedagogy, and the discipline and the profession. In doing so, we’ll be thinking about the ways in which the work that we create, study, and teach has contributed, positively and negatively, to the societies in which we live, and the ways in which our creative production, research, and teaching can contribute to a more equitable, more sustainable world.

We’re pleased to feature scholars and creative writers at all stages of their careers, from graduate students to emeriti, representing many different universities and colleges, and many diverse communities and experiences. We’re particularly excited to be presenting our two plenary speakers: Min Hyoung Song (Boston College), author of Climate Lyricism (Duke University Press), who will be discussing “The Art of Paying Attention to Climate Change” on the first day of the conference, Saturday May 27; and the incomparable Dionne Brand, author of many essential texts, including An Autobiography of the Autobiography of Reading (University of Alberta Press), who will be presenting “A Brief Reading in Autobiographies” on Monday May 29. I’d like to thank the Federation’s Open Programming Fund, English Studies in Canada, and the Canadian Association for Postcolonial Studies for their financial support for these plenaries, as well as our partners in the Association for Canadian and Québec Literatures, Black Canadian Studies Association, and the Canadian Society for the Study of Education whose support made these events possible. We’re also very pleased to be supporting the Canadian Society for Renaissance Studies’ plenary featuring Elizabeth Hodgson (University of British Columbia), who will discuss “Manufacturing Nationalism in Fuller’s The Worthies of England” and to be partnering with the Association for Canadian and Québec Literatures’ on a plenary featuring Lily Cho (York University) discussing “One Hundred Years of Chinese Canadian Exclusion.” That’s not to mention all the other associations, too numerous to mention here, with whom we’ve collaborated on joint panels and roundtables.

PRESIDENT’S MESSAGE

DOUGLAS IVISON, ACCUTE PRESIDENT
That’s not all. There will be food, drink, and dancing as well. An opening-night reception, three book launches, a banquet, and the return of the ACCUTE Dance Party, DJ’ed by Mark McCutcheon (Athabasca University).

A more or less final draft of our program forms the bulk of this newsletter. There will be print copies available at the conference, and a fuller version online on our website.

We regret that our decision to hold an entirely in-person conference this year means that some of you will not be able to join us, for many different reasons. Given the workload and cost of holding a truly hybrid conference within the context of Congress, and the limited capacity to actually do so, we believe we made the right decision. We look forward, however, to feedback on how we can ensure ACCUTE is more accessible to those unable to attend our annual conference. Please contact division@lakeheadu.ca with your feedback, questions, and concerns.

As I’m sure you know, many hours of work have gone into planning this conference. Thanks to everyone whose work has made this conference possible, including participants and session organizers. Without you, there would be no conference. Thanks also to the Congress staff and those at York who having been working around the clock to help us stage this conference. I’d particularly like to acknowledge the work of the members of the Board of Directors, Cheryl Lousley, ACCUTE’s VP, and our Local Arrangements Coordinators, Lily Cho and Stephen Cain. Special thanks must go to ACCUTE’s Office Co-ordinator, Erin Knight. In many ways, Erin is ACCUTE, and this conference would not be happening, nor would this newsletter have been published, without her tireless labour on behalf of ACCUTE and its members. Thanks Erin!

Sadly, I must end this column by noting the passing of Kyla Morris, a promising doctoral student at Western and President of ACCUTE’s Graduate Student Caucus, and thus member of the Board of Directors, in 2021-22. My thoughts are with Kyla’s family, all who loved her, and her colleagues at Western and throughout ACCUTE. She will be missed, but her contributions will be remembered.
Kyla Morris was a PhD student at Western University and a member of the Graduate English Society. She had completed her MA at University of British Columbia’s Okanagan campus and relocated to London, Ontario, to continue her doctoral studies and serve as GES Co-Chair. Her research interests were in critical theory with a focus on feminist and gender theory, psychoanalytical theory, and trauma theory.

She served as ACCUTE’s GSC President from 2021-2022.

With a heavy heart, we must share the difficult news that Kyla Morris, GSC past president and much-loved PhD Candidate, passed away suddenly on Thursday April 20, 2023. For her PhD, Kyla was writing about the role of trauma in female detective fiction. She had launched the Humanities Graduate Student Conference on UBC Okanagan’s campus in spring 2019, and was a Society of Graduate Students representative and a member of the Graduate English Society. Kyla also served on the Western micro-credential committee and on the editorial team for the departmental journal, Word Hoard.

Her future plans included filling the role of GES Co-Chair next year. At Western, Kyla was a respected and a popular TA, well loved by her students; many of them requested her for their tutorials. Prior to that, while in her MA at UBC, Kyla organized a Q&A session with her students and Yann Martel. Of her passing, Martel wrote: “Kyla was such a bright, hardworking, talented young woman. I still think of her when I look at that excellent painting of a tiger she gave me. And I remember fondly the Zoom classes I had with her students, which she so ably navigated. Her death is a horrible tragedy, there’s no other way to put it. At least she lived well, doing what she wanted, and doing it well.” Kyla made many contributions to ACCUTE and the GSC during her tenure, and she had so many more ideas for the future of the Department of English and Writing Studies at Western University.

More importantly, Kyla was an incredibly kind person and a brilliant member of our academic community. Even if you only knew her a little — and being a former President of the ACCUTE GSC, she was known to many — you knew that she was supportive, thoughtful, and generous with her energy. We were all very lucky to know Kyla and she will be deeply missed. Our thoughts are with her family, friends, and partner at this time.

This tragic news is deeply shocking indeed. She had once said: “Studying English isn’t just looking at books or reading stories. You have to look at other forms of cultural implications. I know that I can expand and push my limits and contribute to changing the way we look at things.” May we all — including, especially, Kyla’s family, friends, and partner — find strength at this difficult hour, cherishing our worlds that Kyla expanded along with her own.

REPORT FROM THE COMMITTEE OF PROFESSIONAL CONCERNS

KIT DOBSON, MEMBER-AT-LARGE, CPC COMMITTEE

Kit Dobson is a faculty member in the Department of English at the University of Calgary. His most recent book is Field Notes on Listening (Wolsak & Wynn, 2022). Kit is scheduled to publish his debut novel in 2024. He has served two terms on the ACCUTE Board of Directors.

It is a Wednesday in April, and I have just wrapped up another year’s teaching in my institution. Many of us know the feeling – in one form or another – of completing the academic year. For me, it is most often a mix of relief, joy, accomplishment, and exhaustion. While I am tired this year, as usual, I want to focus instead on the quiet elation that comes from seeing a new group of students through their courses. I have been struck this year, yet again, by the ways in which students in the discipline of English remain so very good at unthinking the forms of industrialized knowledge that the university system seems to want to foist upon them. My students routinely challenge the neoliberal university, undermine the rising authoritarianism that surrounds them, and reconsider what it means to be studying and thinking about texts in this time. Sometimes they do so in small, quiet ways through the assignments that they complete; sometimes they do so more vocally in the classroom; and sometimes their work transcends the hallways of the university and takes on greater meaning in the world. Those moments, big and small, are the ones that bring me back to the classroom, year after year, and that I find myself dwelling in today.

As I write on this Wednesday, I am looking ahead, too, to the close of my term as the Chair of ACCUTE’s Committee for Professional Concerns. I have held this role for nearly four years – two two-year terms. In the height of the pandemic, I returned to the role in an effort to ensure that ACCUTE’s efforts to represent the profession in Canada could continue. It has been four remarkable years. I emerge from my time in this role perhaps similarly to how I’ve emerged from the end of the academic year: tired, yes, but first and foremost in awe of my colleagues and their dedication and labour. This discipline – in its formations, vexations, and shifts – is one that provides an intellectual home to so many people whom I am glad to count among my colleagues and friends. I thank you all for your continued efforts and for your conversations with me in this role.
ACCUTE’s Committee for Professional Concerns is assembled from a group of people who, by and large, already work with ACCUTE in other capacities. In our present configuration, we are chaired by myself as a member of the ACCUTE Board and are joined by the ACCUTE Vice-President (currently Cheryl Lousley); Contract Academic Faculty representative (Carellin Brooks); representative from the Canadian Association of Chairs of English (Susie O’Brien); Colleges representative (Mark Kaethler); Graduate Caucus representative (Krista Collier-Jarvis); and one additional member (Shazia Hafiz Ramji). I view the Committee as a sort of standing reserve of labour (forgive me, but in the Marxist sense, I suppose). We are available to the membership to take on and consider matters of professional concern as they arise and we are there to support the Board.

Our main task, since before I have been in this role, has been to organize and run two panels at the annual conference on matters that are of current concern to the profession. Accordingly, this year, we have two panels set to run at the ACCUTE conference at York University in May:

1. Reckonings and Reimaginings: Black and Indigenous Solidarities
Chair: Kit Dobson (University of Calgary)
Youenal Albera (McGill University)
Jennifer Komorowski (Toronto Metropolitan University)
Alexandra Omogbadegun (Howard University)
Rachel Stubbs (University of Calgary)

2. Precarious Labour in the ‘Post’-Pandemic: What Role Can the Discipline Play in Effecting Change?
Chair: Carellin Brooks (University of British Columbia)
Jennifer Andrews (Dalhousie University)
Rohan Ghatage (Trent University)
Anne Quéma (Acadia University)
Eric Schmaltz (York University Glendon)

It is my hope that these panels will continue to contribute to maintaining the vibrant scholarly and professional life that ACCUTE participants have come to expect of the Committee for Professional Concerns. I am grateful to everyone who has agreed to participate in these conversations and I encourage you to join us during the conference.
Alongside these annual panels, the work that I have endeavoured to take on this role has been to support ACCUTE in successfully navigating the challenging times that we have endured during the past four years. I have had two occasions, alongside my formal role with ACCUTE, to write and lobby for the postsecondary sector in the online journalism site rabble.ca, and I have had many, many conversations with colleagues, students, and community members about the work that this organization does – and as I have done so, I have endeavoured to keep thinking about how this organization might continue to do this work better.

As I get set to leave this role, I want to thank everyone who has been part of these conversations. Not only do I thank this year's committee, but I thank everyone who has been involved in all of its iterations over the past four years, as well as all of the participants on all of the panels that the Committee has organized. I’m not going far. I’m simply going to spend the next short while refocusing my energies for new tasks that lie ahead. As with the end of the teaching year, a bit of rest and recuperation is necessary so that I can keep that focus on the brilliant contributions that you all offer up every day.

ACCUTE Board Position Openings:

- Member-at-Large, Committee for Professional Concerns (2023-2025)
- Member-at-Large, Priestley Prize Committee Chair (2023-2025)

You are invited to submit nominations (including self-nominations) for the positions of Member-at-Large, Committee for Professional Concerns; and Member-at-Large, Priestley Prize Committee Chair. The positions commence 1 July 2023 for a period of two years lasting until 30 June 2025. Elections will be held at the Annual General Meeting at York University on May 30, 2023. In the case of more than one nomination, nominees will have the opportunity to articulate their interest to the membership and respond to questions at the AGM. To address ACCUTE’s commitment to equity, diversity and inclusivity, preference will be given to applicants who self-identify as one or more of any of the following: diversity of gender identity, 2SLBGTQ+, Indigenous peoples, racialized persons, or persons with disabilities. To nominate yourself or another for the position, please contact Erin Knight at info.accute@gmail.com.
This issue, The Angle launches a series in collaboration with the CWC showcasing college and university Creative Writing programs in Canada. We’ve reached out to postsecondary institutions that offer a Creative Writing major, minor, certificate, MFA, MA, PhD, and/or other program, and we asked representatives to complete a brief questionnaire about Creative Writing at their institution. We’ve been delighted by the response and welcome profiles from all creative writing offerings no matter the program scope or type of institution. If you would like to share a profile of the Creative Writing Program you are involved in, please contact info.accute@gmail.com.

UNIVERSITY OF CALGARY

Respondent: Aritha van Herk  Program Website: Click here

Programs offered: BA in English or Drama, with Honours Creative Thesis; MA in English or Drama, Course Based or with Creative Thesis; PhD in English with Creative Thesis; Embedded Certificate in Creative Writing.

Description:
The Creative Writing program at the University of Calgary has been offering courses since the 1980s in all genres: poetry, fiction, non-fiction, and drama at the Undergraduate and Graduate levels. Faculty have authored more than 50 books combined, and graduates have published hundreds of award-winning books. The Calgary Distinguished Writers Program hosts a Canadian Writer-in-Residence every year, as well as visits by Distinguished Writers.

Selection of Recent Faculty Publications:
Kit Dobson, Field Notes on Listening (Wolsak and Wynn); Clem Martini, Cantata and The Extinction Therapist (UpRoute); Suzette Mayr, The Sleeping Car Porter (Coach House Books); Rain Prud'homme-Cranford, Miscegenation Rroundance: Poèmes Historiques (Mongrel Empire), Miss Vivek Shraya, People Change (Penguin Canada), Uchechukwu Peter Umezurike, There's More (U of Alberta Press); Aritha van Herk, "Procrastination," in A to Z of Creative Writing Methods (Bloomsbury); Joshua Whitehead, Making Love with the Land (Penguin Random House)
The CWNA was established in 2022 in response to interest from students within and beyond the Department of English and Cultural Studies in having more creative writing courses and a more defined path to their completion and recognition. Up to 30 students are admitted to the certificate each year from students in Level 2 in any program. Students taking the certificate complete a capstone course in their final year in which they have the opportunity to focus in a sustained way on developing a single piece or set of smaller pieces. Recognizing that creative writing isn’t just an individual pursuit but one that happens in and for community, the CWNA program emphasizes the responsibility that engagement entails, and the forms that it can take, whether students are engaged in writing, editing, organizing literary events, or other allied activities.

Selection of Recent Faculty Publications: Daniel Coleman. Yardwork: A Biography of an Urban Place (Wolsak & Wynn); Ki’en Debicki, “Our Fires Are Connected: The Story of a Two Row Wampum Family.” Joseph Arts and Letters; Jeffery Donaldson, Granted: Poems of Metaphor (Porcupine’s Quill); Cathy Grise, Love’s Anchor (Lincolnshire and New York); Gena Zuroski, Kintail Beach (Model).
Respondents: Jessica Walters, MFA and Vic Cavalli, MA

Program Website: Click here

Programs offered: Bachelor of Arts (BA), Honours, Concentration, Minor in English; students can pursue a Creative Writing stream within the English degree

Description:
The Department of English and Creative Writing offers classes in the writing of poetry, nonfiction, fiction, and the novel. These classes aim not only to inspire and support the craft of writing, but to situate students within the literary tradition.

While studying, many creative writing students work for Mars Hill, the on-campus student newspaper, and have the chance to see their work published on a monthly basis.

There is also a student-run literary journal, [spaces], which is housed in the Department of English and Creative Writing. This journal is supervised by TWU English faculty. [spaces] produces one print journal annually, publishing poetry, prose, and visual artwork and culminates with a launch party at the end of each semester.

UNIVERSITY OF WATERLOO

Respondent: Victoria Lamont

Program Website: Click here

Programs offered: Bachelor of Arts, English — Creative and Professional Writing

Description: The Creative and Professional Writing B.A. is a new program for the University of Waterloo. It combines courses in Creative Writing, Professional writing (technical, business, non-profit, media), Rhetoric, and Communication design. Our goal is to prepare students for careers as writers in a range of contexts.

Selection of Recent Faculty Publications: Jennifer Harris, When You Were New (HarperCollins); Sarah Tolmie, All the Horses of Iceland (TorDotCom); Lamees Al Ethari, Waiting for the Rain (Mawenzi House)

UNIVERSITY OF REGINA

Respondent: Michael Trussler

Program Website: Click here

Programs offered: MA in Creative Writing

Description: The MA in Creative Writing is a non-terminal degree. After course work in both academic and creative writing seminars, students write a thesis in the genre of their choice. Award-winning faculty offer small classes, personal supervision and professional training. One of the strengths of our M.A. program is its combination of creative and critical elements. Our students engage with creative and critical scholarship on writing. We've been running the program for almost two decades; during this period, slightly more than half of our graduates have turned their thesis into a book and almost all have published parts of it in journals across the country.

UNIVERSITY OF BRITISH COLUMBIA OKANAGAN

Respondents: University of British Columbia Okanagan Faculty

Program Website: Click here

Programs offered: Bachelor of Arts (BA) in Creative Writing: Major in Creative Writing, Combined Major with Creative Writing, Minor in Creative Writing; MFA in Creative Writing

Description:
We offer a four-year UBC degree with courses in poetry, fiction, stageplay, screenplay, creative non-fiction, digital media, editing and publishing, spoken word, and community learning. Our degree is designed to build students' range and confidence to the professional level, while familiarizing them with practical aspects of the writing life. Students publish in Paper Shell, the student anthology, and meet one-on-one with major authors who serve as Writer-in-Residence.

We also admit a small but lively group of MFAs that are part of a larger collection of graduate students specializing in performance, theatre, filmmaking, and visual arts. Shared coursework and social interactions allow for unique opportunities in interdisciplinary collaboration.

Selection of Recent Faculty Publications: Kevin Chong, The Double Life of Benson Yu (Atria/Simon & Schuster); 2023 Anne Fleming, Curiosity (Knopf Canada); Nancy Holmes, Aborophobia, (University of Alberta); Matt Rader, Ghosthawk, (Nightwood Editions); Michael V. Smith, Queers Like Me, (Book*hug)
UNIVERSITY OF NEW BRUNSWICK

Respondents: Sue Sinclair & David Huebert

Program Website: Click here

Programs offered: BA (Major; Honours), MA, PhD

Description:
Set in the beautiful valley of the Wolastoq (the Saint John River), our programs blend the complementary practices of critical reading and creative writing. Students work alongside some of the most accomplished writers in the country in genres including fiction, poetry, screenwriting and playwriting. We feature small classes sizes and aim to be mindful of students' identities and backgrounds. Creative writing classes usually meet in the cozy Ice House, a charming building that stored ice for the university before the arrival of electricity.

We offer one of two PhDs in creative writing in the country as well as an undergraduate certificate in publishing. We also provide multiple opportunities beyond the classroom: our writer-in-residence program lets students work one-on-one with some of Canada's finest writers, and our Visiting Writers Series brings in several more writers each term. Students can work at The Fiddlehead, Canada's oldest literary journal, or contribute to the well-established student-run journal Qwerty. Students may also read their work at venues like Poetry Weekend, a popular grassroots festival held every fall. Many of our students have gone on to publish their theses and dissertations in book form and have built successful careers as writers and teachers.

Selection of Recent Faculty Publications: Triny Finlay, Myself a Paperclip (winner of New Brunswick Book Award for Poetry); David Huebert, Chemical Valley (winner of the Alistair MacLeod Prize for Short Fiction); Sue Sinclair, Almost Beauty: New and Selected Poems (Goose Lane Editions)
Dionne Brand is a renowned poet, novelist, and essayist. Her writing is notable for the beauty of its language, and for its intense engagement with issues of international social justice. She became prominent first as an award-winning poet, winning the Griffin Poetry Prize for her volume Ossuaries, and a Governor General’s Literary Award and Trillium Book Prize for Land to Light On. Among other honours, she was awarded the 2003 Pat Lowther Memorial Award for thirsty and the Trillium Book Prize for The Blue Clerk, which was also nominated for a Governor General’s Literary Award and the Griffin Poetry Prize. She served as Poet Laureate of the City of Toronto 2009-2012. Her latest collection, Nomenclature: New and Collected Poems was published in 2022.

Brand has also achieved great distinction and acclaim in fiction and non-fiction. Her most recent novel, Theory, won the 2019 Toronto Book Award and the BOCAS Fiction Prize. Her fiction includes Love Enough, nominated for the 2015 Trillium Book Award, and the critically acclaimed novels In Another Place, Not Here, At the Full and Change of the Moon, and What We All Long For. Her non-fiction includes A Map to the Door of No Return: Notes to Belonging, which has been widely taken up by scholars of Black Diaspora.

Dionne Brand was a professor in the School of English and Theatre Studies at the University of Guelph from 2004-2022 and holds several Honorary Doctorates. Previously Poetry Editor at McClelland & Stewart from 2014-2021, she is now Editorial Director of Alchemy, an imprint of Knopf Canada. She is a member of the Order of Canada.
Min Hyoung Song is the Chair of the English Department at Boston College. He is the author of three books, all published by Duke University Press: Climate Lyricism, The Children of 1965: On Writing and Not Writing as an Asian American, and Strange Future: Pessimism and the 1992 Los Angeles Riots. The Children of 1965 won numerous awards, including the Association for Asian American Studies Prize in Literary Criticism and the Alpha Sigma Nu Award in Literature and Fine Arts. He also co-edited (with Rajini Srikanth) The Cambridge History of Asian American Literature and co-edited (with Jean Wu) Asian American Studies: A Reader, as well as acted as the series co-editor (again with Rajini Srikanth) of the 4-volume Asian American Literature in Transition (published by Cambridge University Press).

Elizabeth Hodgson is Professor of English at the University of British Columbia. Her work examines gender in the cultural histories of early-modern English literatures. Her most recent monograph, The Masculinities of John Milton: Cultures and Constructs of Manhood in the Major Works (Cambridge, 2022), is the first monograph on Milton's men. Other titles include Grief and Women Writers in the English Renaissance (Cambridge UP, 2015) and Gender and the Sacred Self in John Donne (Delaware UP, 1999). She has published articles and book-chapters on Shakespeare, Wroth, Philips, Donne, and Herbert, as well as publications about funeral sermons, psalm-translations, early modern pedagogy, and early modern hospitality. She is currently co-editing a collection on Renaissance queens and English nationalism.
New ACCUTE member Kate Sheckler (Marianopolis College) is pleased to announce the recent publication of her book Ursula K. Le Guin, Consent, and Metaphor (Rowman and Littlefield).

From the publisher:
In Ursula K. Le Guin, Consent, and Metaphor, Kate Sheckler constructs a new method to categorize metaphor, arguing that the moment of consent that exists in the form determines the effects of the interchange. Using the fiction of Ursula K. Le Guin, with the work of Paul Ricoeur as a primary theoretical focus, Sheckler identifies both the dangers and necessity of understanding the interplay that determines by whom and at what point consent is offered within the dynamic shift that occurs in metaphor. In doing so, she identifies the way marginalized groups and cultures can be reconstructed in service to an outside force and notes the absolute necessity of metaphor as a constructive force in a world where we must imagine new ways to approach the future.

Kate Sheckler's previous book was Words that Count: A Guide to Writing Analytical Essays about Fiction, published in 2019 by JFD Publications.

For more details about Ursula K. Le Guin, Consent, and Metaphor, please click here.
Linda M. Morra (Bishop's University) will celebrate the publication of her newest book, The Routledge Introduction to Gender and Sexuality in Literature in Canada (Routledge) with a joint book launch at ACCUTE’s upcoming conference. She will be joined by Jennifer Andrews (Dalhousie University), whose book Canada Through American Eyes: Literature and Canadian Exceptionalism is forthcoming from Palgrave Macmillan, and Erin Wunker (Dalhousie University), who has just seen the publication of The Routledge Introduction to Twentieth- and Twenty-First-Century Canadian Poetry (Routledge).

From the publisher:

The Routledge Introduction to Gender and Sexuality in Literature in Canada charts the evolution of gender and sexuality, as they have been represented and performed in the literatures of Canada for more than three centuries. From early colonial texts by Frances Brooke, to settler texts by Susanna Moodie and Catherine Parr Traill, to more contemporary texts by Jane Rule, Alice Munro, Joshua Whitehead, Ivan Coyote, and others, this volume will introduce readers to how gender and sexuality have been variably conceived in Canada and the work they perform across multiple genres. Calling upon recent currents of gender theory and examining the composition, structure, and history of selected literary texts—that is, the “literary sediments” that have accumulated over centuries—readers of this book will explore how those representations shift over time. By examining literature in Canada in relation to crucial cultural, political, and historical contexts, readers will better apprehend why that literature has significantly transformed and broadened to address racialized and fluid identities that continue to challenge and disrupt any stable notion of gendered and sexualized identity today.

For more details about The Routledge Introduction to Gender and Sexuality in Literature in Canada, please visit the Routledge website.
Another significant contribution to the Routledge Introductions to Canadian Literature series is Twentieth- and Twenty-First-Century Canadian Poetry (Routledge) by Erin Wunker (Dalhousie University).

From the publisher:
When asked the question "what is the power of poetry?," writer Ian Williams said "poetry punctures the surface." Williams' statement — that poetry matters and that it does something — is at the heart of this book. Building from this core idea that poetry perforates the everyday to give greater range to our lives and our thinking, the practical and pedagogical aim of this book is twofold: the first aim is to provide students with an introduction to the key cultural, political, and historical events that inform twentieth- and twenty-first-century Canadian poetry; and to familiarize those same readers with poetic movements, trends, and forms of the same time period. This book addresses the aesthetic and social contexts of Canadian poetry written in the twentieth and twenty-first centuries: it models for its readers the critical and theoretical discourses needed to understand the contexts of literary production in Canada. Put differently, readers need a sense of the "where" and "how" of poetic production to help situate them in the "what" of poetry itself. In addition to offering a historically contextualized overview of the significant movements, developments, and poets of this time period, this book also familiarizes readers with key moments of reflection and rupture, such as the effects of economic and ecological crisis, global conflicts, and debates around appropriation of culture. This book is built on the premise that poetry in Canada does not happen outside of political, social, and cultural contexts.

MEETING AGENDAS
Territorial Acknowledgement

We recognize that many Indigenous Nations have longstanding relationships with the territories upon which York University campuses are located that precede the establishment of York University. York University acknowledges its presence on the traditional territory of many Indigenous Nations. The area known as Tkaronto has been care taken by the Anishinabek Nation, the Haudenosaunee Confederacy, and the Huron-Wendat. It is now home to many First Nation, Inuit and Métis communities. We acknowledge the current treaty holders, the Mississaugas of the Credit First Nation. This territory is subject of the Dish with One Spoon Wampum Belt Covenant, an agreement to peaceably share and care for the Great Lakes region.

Congress 2023 Theme: Reckonings and Re-Imaginings

Drawing on the lessons of Black Lives Matter, Idle No More, the Truth and Reconciliation Commission and the Inquiry into Missing and Murdered Indigenous Women and Girls, Congress 2023 will focus on new reckonings for how to live in non-hierarchical relationships that respect our human differences, while protecting the environment we depend on.

Under the theme Reckonings and Re-Imaginings, Congress will honour Black and Indigenous knowledges and cultures, and centre the diverse voices and ideas of scholars, graduate students, policymakers and community members in vital conversations about racial and climate justice and other pressing issues facing our world.

Safety Protocols and Code of Conduct

Covid-19 Safety Protocols

To ensure a safe Congress experience for all attendees, Congress 2023 will follow the recommendations of Ontario's Chief Medical Officer of Health, as outlined by York University:

- Masking strongly recommended
- Vaccination strongly encouraged
- Use of self-assessment strongly encouraged

Code of Conduct

ACCUTE supports the Code of Conduct outlined by the Federation for the Humanities and Social Sciences. We are committed to the advancement of teaching, research, and scholarship through respectful, inclusive, and collegial discourse and engagement. Accordingly, we require adherence to these values by all participants in our events and meetings. We strive to ensure that the participants in our activities enjoy an environment free from discrimination, harassment and bullying. Further, we are committed to providing an atmosphere through all of our activities that encourages free expression and the exchange of ideas — in a respectful manner — as well as open, critically engaged and sometimes challenging discourse. To that end, we require that all participants comply with the Code of Conduct. Failure to do so may result in disciplinary action up to and including expulsion from Federation or association membership and/or participation in Federation or association activities.

Congress 2023 Open Events

Open events are events that any registered Congress visitor can attend. Whether you are attending Congress 2023 as part of an association conference or as a member of the general public registered with a community pass, you are invited to participate in an exciting array of open events.

Open events are an excellent opportunity to engage in conversations across disciplines and to learn together. You will find these under a variety of programming streams, including the Big Thinking lecture series, Career Corner workshops, Expo and events presented by York University.

A complete listing of open events can be found on the Congress Events Calendar.

BORDERBLUR POETICS
Intermedia and Avant-Gardism in Canada, 1963-1988

Eric Schmaltz

Beginning in 1963 and continuing through the late 1980s, a loose coterie of like-minded Canadian poets challenged the conventions of writing and poetic meaning by fusing their practice with strategies from visual art, sound art, sculpture, installation, and performance. They called it “borderblur.” Author Eric Schmaltz demonstrates how these poets formed an alternative tradition, one that embraced intermediality to challenge the hegemony of Canadian literature established during the heydays of cultural nationalism. Drawing on a combination of archival research, historical analysis, and literary criticism, Borderblur Poetics adds significant nuance to theories and criticisms of Canadian literature.

Provides illuminating socio-historical contexts for a stunning spectrum of unconventional Canadian poetry that averts national narratives while staying tuned to local contexts and the plural event of the poem.

—Charles Bernstein, University of Pennsylvania

Schmaltz’s rigorous study is essential reading for anyone wishing to understand the 20th century poetic revolution in Canada and beyond.

—Suzanne Zelazo, writer and critic

Bless Borderblur Poetics for its abundance of obscure ephemeral publications, collected from public and private archives of a paratradition in the field of Canadian Literature, bless its exhumation of this space outside of normative lingual habits and conventions. Blast the normative tradition!

—Gregory Betts, Brock University

Graduate Study at York University

If you have studied literature in Canada, chances are that you have already begun to study at York University. For generations, both directly and indirectly, the English department at York has shaped the ways in which literary study is carried out across the country.

Pursue research and teaching that is “theory forward,” in contemporary critical studies that span the world of literary history. Develop critical and creative thought through interdisciplinary engagement with literature, theory, history, and politics, while collaborating with professors and peers. Work within and across grad programs and research centers at York and elsewhere.

Our Graduate Diploma in World Literature — the only one of its kind in Canada — highlights the study of world literatures written in English through post- and decolonial theory. Our Graduate Diploma in Creative Writing helps students develop their unique talents for writing across the genres, in fiction, poetry, and literary nonfiction.

Our PhDs are professors at UBC, Simon Fraser, U Alberta, Queen's, McGill, UNB, and elsewhere across North America. Our Master’s and Doctoral program graduates have developed dynamic careers in the arts, in government, in NGOs, in online and print journalism, publishing, project management, and a host of entrepreneurial businesses related to arts, education, and community development.
